the Eric property will be better off without the C. H. and D. because the Eric was not sufficiently strong financially to make so costly a purchase. Eugene Zimmerman, the former President of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton, is quoted as saying "This is the story of the sale of the C. H. and D. and Pere Marquette: The Eric wanted the road and was forced to put up Eric bonds to pay for it. The public did not buy the Eric bonds, and the road had no money with which to pay for the C. H. and D. It then went back to Mr. Morgan as a natural consequence. It probably made him, angry, but the Eric simply could not pay for it and there was no other way out of it."

The eleven point rise of Nickel Plate common within the past two days has started up a flock of rumors. This railroad—the New York, Chicago and St. Louis—Is owned and operated by the Vanuerblits, but it is the only Vanderblits, but it is the only vanderblits, the Lake Eric and Western are reporting increased earnings for the current year.

There was a great deal of profit-taking early in the day, much of the selling being for foreign account. London schi about 20,000 shares of various stocked in the first hour. After a slight reaction prices easily railled and two or three new high records were made. For the greater part of the day it was a hurrah market, the floor of the big trading room being crowded and each group of brokers outvieing the other in enthusiasm. When the 18 per cent. call money rate was announced it was greeted with derisive cheers.

Specialists in Na ional Lead stock say that the Guggenhelm interests have secured 75,000 shares of the common stock of this company and that the chances of a merger of National Lead and United Lead are better than ever before. The Guggenhelms are known to be in favor of such a merger, and it is stated on good authority that a contract by which the American Smelting Company will supply the National Lead Company will supply the National Lead Company will supply the National Lead Company will supply the same interests that dominate the American Smelting Company. Officers of the last-camed corporation still deny that it will absorb the two lead companies.

THE CHRISTMAS WORLD. QUT NEXT SUNDAY.

In the Christmas number of the New York World will appear a story by Mrs. Russell Sage, in which she tells of "My First Doll and Dolls of To-Day." This is something that will delight every child and every mother. A pleasant feature of a most pleasant Christmas newspaper.

sion-house buying in the cotton market early to-day was sufficiently large to offset weak cables, and prices held firm offset weak cables, and prices held firm all round, especially for leite months. Later the list developed additional strength. The sellers were mostly longs taking profits. Houses with connections in the South were good purchasers.

It's a Christmas Store Now.

We would like to be able to print the thousands of comments that will fall from the lips of New Yorkers as they come into the store to-day and see it in its Holiday dress. Apart from the merchandise, it is a gorgeous show. And we never before gathered such great stocks for a Christmas business.

No; the holly berries are not real-they're tiny electric bulbs-and there are thousands of them strung among the holly vines that are festooned from pillar to pillar and from post to post.

The Toy Store is on the Third Floor. Occupies almost half of it, and a gorgeous exhibition we have made. Santa Claus is up there, too. He has built a little stone house for himself. and it's surrounded by a broad piazza. Every little while he'll come out and show the little folks how to do all sorts of funny trickstricks that are really more wonderful than climbing the chimney on Christmas Eve.

Make this YOUR Christmas Headquarters. Come as often as you care to. Look around and ask questions; our helpers will do their best to see that you make satisfactory purchases; gifts that will please you and
